TEACHING EXPERIENCE

Voted outstanding lecturer for the year in 2014

Nominated as most engaging lecturer 2017

Recent scores available as pdfs on request - frequently attain between 4.5 to 5 out of 5

On becoming an academic the university provided teacher training that conformed to the Professional Standards Framework at the time.

Feedback from students, recent comments include:-

- 1) I enjoyed learning about global economics, particularly because I feel that there is not enough economic content in the Politics and IR degree overall.
- 2) I like that the topics covered are interesting and that John Glenn is so knowledgeable and interested in the topics.
- 3) Probably the most interesting and intellectually engaging module I have attended in my entire degree.
- 4) absolutely love this module. Really like the revision session in particular when we went through past exam papers. I feel more exam based modules should do this. topics are current/ up to date (i.e. financial crash).
- 5) Very enlightening as to how the international system has responded to globalisation
- 6) John delivered very informative and detailed lectures; he explained things in a way which was understandable as well as detailed and he was always available for questions or queries. He was very good at providing materials which would be useful and his communication was very good with regard to upcoming lectures, materials, video links etc. He was also very good at providing information post-lecture, for example, when a table or graph did not show information from a particular year or country, he would provide the information during the break or following the lecture. He was very quick at responding to e-mails and managed the class well. He was also generous with his time and happy to offer guidance to students with general questions relating to their dissertation or thesis.

Administrative Experience

Head of Teaching Programmes

This involves running the department in all areas of teaching, examinations, NSS and curriculum planning. In response to the low NSS 2017 and 2018 scores, I have arranged for a complete restructuring of our programmes and ensured major changes in our delivery/assessment of modules.

Oct 2016 – June 2017 Ethics and Risk Review Officer

Reviewing research applications by students and staff with regard to risk and ethics assessment

June 2015 – Oct 2016 Programme Innovation Officer + Web Development Officer

Because of the turnover and expansion of staff, we have the opportunity of creating new courses and programmes. Due to the large number of innovatory courses/programmes, I have been tasked with passing this through Faculty, providing market analysis concerning student demand and ensuring that they: are consistent with staff specialisms; do not overlap; are compliant with CQA etc.

November 2014 - 2015- Exams Officer & Special Considerations Officer

Ensuring that the new (as of Oct 2014) exam regulations are being followed and understood.

Ensuring that our marking is rigorous and meets the requisite national standard

Providing a statistical analysis of courses and programmes to ensure that our marking is of a uniform standard.

October 2010 – November 2014 - Employability Officer

This was a new administrative role created in response to increasing demands from students for more practical employment orientated activities.

The job involved coordinating, employability activities with our Career Destinations Office, monitoring feedback from students and adjusting the package of seminars and workshops accordingly. It also involved creating an internal website that is continually updated with the latest job opportunities, internships, voluntary work and inviting speakers from various job sectors. I initiated and then jointly led a weekend conference on working for NGOs which is now an annual event.

August 2006 – October 2011 - Exams Officer & Special Considerations Officer

Ensuring that exam regulations are being followed and understood.

Ensuring that our marking is rigorous and meets the requisite national standard

Providing a statistical analysis of courses and programmes to ensure that our marking is of a uniform standard.

August 2004 – August 2006 - Special Leave to Work at a Japanese University

October 2002 – August 2004 - Head of Teaching Programmes

During this period I was tasked with ensuring that new programmes and courses were compliant with university regulations and standards as well as meeting the national standards set out by the national Curriculum Quality Assurance.

October 2000 – October 2002 - IT and Library Liaison Officer

Our department was the first at the university to establish semester wide sessions improving students dissertation skills in liaison with the library. The course was subsequently taken up by other departments and our experience was published by library staff in a specialist book.

October 1997 – October 2000 – Admissions Tutor

Processing potential students' applications and making offers subject to achieving the requisite grades
